

Find out what happens when an internationally renowned rock star puts down the guitar and is thrown into some of the worlds most dangerous and difficult occupations, when Barenaked Ladies vocalist and guitarist, Ed Robertson hosts Ed's Up. In each episode of the OLN original series Ed's Up, Robertson, an avid recreational pilot, receives a set of GPS coordinates from a "mystery person," who clearly wants to see him sweat it out! Flying to unknown locations, Robertson must immediately get to work. From working at a tree-planting camp and steel mill to a navy training base these jobs are very physical and at times incredibly risky. But why would an international rock star risk life and limb doing these crazy challenges? Simply put, this series lets Robertson prove to himself and the world that although he's a pampered celebrity, he's tough enough to work alongside some of this country's unsung heroes.
